

EVERY CLEARFIELD COUNTY CITIZEN SHOULD HELP COMPILE HERO LISTS

State Secretary Appeals To People to Assist Him In Compiling Lists Of Those Who Were Killed Or Died While In the Service

SEND INFORMATION TO JOHN M. BAIN AT ONCE

John M. Bain, secretary to the Local Selective Service Board, on September 10th, 1919, received from Dr. McKinley, Secy., Pennsylvania War History Commission, the following list of fatalities during the late war, with the request that same be revised. This list is compiled from the official records at Washington, and from the casualty lists as published. It is inaccurate. There are a number of men whose names appear hereafter who have returned home. Some of these I know personally, the others I would like to be advised of.

There are others known by me to have paid the great price whose names do not appear hereon. There are others, no doubt, to me unknown. These I would like to have from interested people in the several sections of the county.

It is hoped that we may at this time get an accurate record of our soldier dead. The assistance of every man and woman in the county is earnestly solicited in getting this record accurate and complete at the earliest possible date.

PASSENGERS ON HEMLOCK LIMITED VISIT COUNTRY

Passenger's on Supt. Johnson's "hemlock special" enjoyed an extended visit in the vicinity of J. S. Benham's farm across the river from Hyde City yesterday morning. The train from Tyrone due here at 11:15 succeeded in making its way without mishap as far as the point mentioned and when the engine drives attempted a 20-mile an hour burst of speed on the straight stretch above Antes' the creaking old iron horse with a snort and snarl right down in the harness, so to speak, and refused to haul.

The engineer and his sidekick hopped down off the ancient relic, which is a fit companion to the aged and decrepit coaches which follow it complainingly from day to day, and after pattering around it for a while and knocking the rust scales off here and there discovered that the engine had broken a spring.

On account of the jaded and asthmatic condition of the outfit which taxes the strength daily to get the regular load over the hills from Tyrone no excess baggage in the way of fixin's and extra parts are allowed to be hauled and the mechanics in the crew were at a loss how to proceed for a while. However old resourceful Conductor Dick Farrell and his celtic ingenuity was again equal to the occasion and making a shrewd deal for half an abandoned wagon from farmer Joe Winters, the needed part was improvised therefrom and after a long hungry wait the damaged was repaired and the train limped into port at Curwensville.

GOON ACQUITTED ON CHARGE OF MANSLAUGHTER

Jury After Deliberation Of Five Hours Finds For The Defendant But Lays Costs

MUCH CONFLICTING EVIDENCE

J. A. Goon, the Woodland landlord who was alleged to have directly or indirectly caused the death of Repossi by striking him, was found not guilty by the jury after they had deliberated for five hours.

While the weight of evidence was apparently against the defendant it appears that the jury gave Mr. Goon the benefit of the doubt in the dispute over the striking of the blow. According to the evidence, two men saw the blow struck, one of whom was partially blind, while another man said he saw Mr. Goon draw back his fist to strike but turned his head and did not see Goon unwind.

A fourth eye witness, who the evidence showed was closer to Goon and Repossi than any of the others, declared no blow was struck.

Mr. Goon was a very good witness. He told a straightforward story and did not deviate therefrom in any respect.

Mr. Liveright made the plea to the jury for the defense starting in at 3:00 and concluding his remarks at 4:12. He carefully reviewed the evidence adduced, pointing out what, in the opinion of the defense, were the weak links in the chain of facts attempted to be forged about him by the Commonwealth.

He was followed by District Attorney Arnold in a masterful plea of 33 minutes duration in which he went carefully over and thru the Commonwealth's evidence.

Judge Bell then delivered his charge to the jury, occupying 20 minutes in defining the law governing this class of case and elucidating for the jury the legal propositions involved and the weight to be given the evidence adduced by the opposing sides.

The jury retired at 5:10 o'clock and took five hours and five minutes in making up their minds and agreeing upon their verdict at 10:15 they filed into the court room and announced that they had found Mr. Goon not guilty but directed that he pay the costs.

The costs in the case amounted to $226.84, and were paid by Mr. Goon this morning.

PLAY BRIDGE FINALS

The Finals of the Bridge Tournament of the Clearfield-Curwensville Country Club were played off Friday night in the parlor of the Dimeling Hotel.

Since early in June, the Tournament has been in progress at the Country Club, being held every Saturday afternoon, in which thirty-two ladies played. The total scores were kept and finally the eight highest scores out of the thirty-two, played last night for the championship of the Club. The championship was won by Mrs. W. S. Piper, of Clearfield.

The scores of the contestants in the Final eight are as follows:

Mrs. W. S. Piper 3722
Miss Edith Patton 3422
Mrs. H. S. Whitman 2648
Mrs. C. S. Russell 2509
Mrs. Singleton Bell 2339
Mrs. R. D. Swope 2195
Mrs. W. F. Powell 1822
Miss Virginia Bigler 1602

Messrs. H. W. Hartwick, A. W. Bigler and A. M. Liveright acted as judges and score keepers, and Cecil F. Wilson as time keeper. Handsome prizes will be awarded the winner of the Tournament and also of the second highest score.

MORE MEN RETURN TO WORK AT MILLS OF SMOKEY CITY

By Fred S. Ferguson.
PITTSBURGH—The steel companies have launched an extensive publicity campaign to get the men to return to work. All the Pittsburgh morning newspapers carried a full page today headed, "Go Back to Work Monday."

The strike situation was generally unchanged today, although the steel companies appeared to be making steady gains. No disorders were reported as the day shifts went on duty.

All mills in the Monongahela Valley reported a large number of men returning to work. 13 of the 15 mills of the Allegheny Steel Company are now operating.

New Kensington is the only point in the lower Allegheny valley where all plants are suspended.

Bitter feeling was evinced in labor circles today over coroner's verdict over the death of Mrs. Shellins, which was "killed in rioting" at Brackenridge. The strikers contend she was deliberately murdered.

The Carnegie Steel offices today announced that if the turn out of men tomorrow night is as good as at present, the steel strike is shot. While a general return is expected Monday, they do not feel that the full effect of the return will be noticed until the middle of the week.

Operators claim a significant point in the report that many mills closed before the strike was called, planning to resume operation Monday. These plants include the McKeesport Tin Plate Company, employing 8,000 and the Pittsburgh Steel Company. The Homestead mills have a small but steady gain in both production and men.

For the first time since the strike was called, employees in the Duquesne mills reported for work today carrying dinner pails.

FOSTER COMMITTEE CALLS FOR STRIKE AT BETHLEHEM

PITTSBURGH—A strike of 40,000 employees of the Bethlehem Steel Company, was called by the steel workers' national committee. The strike is to become effective at 6 o'clock Monday morning. The action was taken after Secretary Foster laid before the full committee, his letter requesting a conference, and President Grant's letter refusing a conference with the union heads. Foster declared that the Bethlehem employees were highly organized and that they had voted 100 per cent. in favor of the strike. The final decision to call the strike, was reached with the full consent of the committee. Foster characterized as newspaper reports, statements that at New Castle and other points, the mills were resuming operation. He declared he was still satisfied with the progress of the strike.

DEER VISITS CHILDREN'S HOME

A fine big doe deer slipped down out of the woods near the Clearfield rick company's plant at Riverview Thursday afternoon and attempted to cross over to the river through the grounds at the Children's Home. Bue Lee happened along in his "rattling good" automobile about that time and the "rattle" was too much for the deer and she beat it back for the woods.

COL. FRED KERR WILL HEAD BIG CAMPAIGN

Jewish Race In War-Torn Nations Of Europe Will Get Sympathy And Assistance Here

PURPOSE OF CAMPAIGN TOLD

The attention of a civilized and humane world has been focused on the terrible persecution of the Jewish race in many parts of the far East and Eastern Europe. No less the Belgians or the French, the Jews in Russia-Poland and other parts of the war torn world have suffered unendurable privations and injuries. Without a country of their own, a haven in which to find refuge, or a country to protect them, there are large settlements of Jews in these foreign countries who, because of the war, have been left destitute and without means of living.

While members of the race have endeavored to give the necessary assistance, Christians throughout the world, have heard the call of humanity and universal brotherhood and in response to this call there has come about a national organization, disregarding race and creed, which will conduct a campaign for the raising of funds for the purposes hereinafter set forth.

The campaign in Clearfield will be conducted by Col. Fred B. Kerr, chairman, assisted by the following citizen committee:

Starvation is Cause of Campaign

Six million souls, old men, old women and little children in Poland, Lithuania, Russia, Palestine, Galicia, Turkey, Syria, Roumania, Greece and Bulgaria are in imminent danger of starving to death this winter.

The seriousness of this condition is indicated by a statement of Herbert Hoover, who says that at least one million people will die of starvation in Eastern Europe this winter—and this despite the combined efforts of American relief agencies.

Countless others will perish from the horrible slow torture of hunger and cold unless America comes immediately to their aid.

$35,000,000 or $6,000,000 Lives

The Joint Distribution committee, the disbursing agency of the Jewish War Relief Committee, is expending more than $2,000,000 a month now to keep alive the Jewish people and the non-Jewish peoples in these afflicted countries.

Millions are Destitute

The Jewish population of Eastern Europe is entirely deprived of the opportunity to be self-supporting. Industries are at a standstill. The trader and merchant of the small town has been driven into the cities where he had added largely to the problems of unemployment. Today 80 per cent. of the Jewish population of Europe is absolutely dependent upon the relief funds furnished by the Joint Distribution committee. The Jew of Europe has gained a large measure of political freedom from the war, but his misery has not been lessened—it has been accentuated by the end of the hostilities. The accumulation of more than four years of war horrors has left these people probably in the greatest destitution ever known in the history of the world.

Conditions are Terrible

The reports of investigators of the American Red Cross and other relief agencies show that in Poland hardly a child under five years old remains alive. There are no able-bodied young men—no strong young women. The old, the maimed, the emaciated children (more than 800,000 of these) are entirely dependent upon America. At best these peoples and millions in the other war-stricken countries can be kept alive until the industries in the nations are resumed, if this campaign is successful.

NO CHANGE IN HEALTH CONDITION OF WILSON

By HUGH BAILEE
ABOARD THE PRESIDENT'S TRAIN, TERRE HAUTE, IND., Sept. 27—President Wilson rested easily last night it was announced. Dr. Grayson, the President's physician, has not left the car, however, and no information is available. The train arrived here at 8:35 p. m. Dr. Grayson spent the night with President Wilson in his private car. The President is suffering from an attack of nervous exhaustion. An official statement last night was that the President's condition was unchanged.

ENTIRE TRANSPORTATION SYSTEM OF ENGLAND TIED UP BY BIG STRIKE

LONDON, Sept. 27—Great Britain today was involved in the most extensive strike in the country's memory. Stoppage of the entire railroad system at midnight opened the first battle in England's history directly between the government and organized labor. Both sides were highly organized and are prepared for a finished fight. With more than one half million men affected by the walk out, and the country's whole transportation system paralyzed, the country's first precaution today was to prepare against starvation.

The Food Ministry sprung a big surprise when it revealed the existence of a secret food reserve in London which it was estimated is sufficient to supply the city for six weeks.

Supervisors of Jordan in Court for Bad Roads

Following the completion of the Goon case yesterday afternoon, the case of Commonwealth vs. Messrs. Gorman, Young and Thurston, Supervisors of Jordan township, was called. In this case Alex Bloom, of Knox township, is prosecuting the Supervisors for maintaining the road into the village of McCartney in such condition that it is a menace and nuisance to the community.

The prosecutor, in driving over this road in November of last year, had his automobile drop into a hole in the road, breaking a spring and causing several fractures of the ten commandments before it was possible to get the damaged machine out of the mud.

This is the first case in Clearfield county where Supervisors have been proceeded against for failure to keep the roads under their jurisdiction, in proper repair, and if M. Bloom wins out, there will no doubt be lots of business in this line for the criminal courts of the future.

The Supervisors are represented by A. R. Chase, Esq., and they say that while the road in question may not be as smooth, level and well kept as a marble floor, it is certainly piling things up pretty well when a citizen of Knox township can navigate safely the roads of his own township in their present condition, and then hustle his neighboring townships Supervisors into court for coming to grief just over the line.

Boxing Bout

Clearfield sports will welcome the news that their local hope, Ike Gibson, is to get back in the ring. Last evening at Altoona Gibson issued a challenge to the winner of the McCoy-Williams bout, as a result of which, McCoy the winner accepted the challenge and the fight will be staged at Clearfield Park Exhibition Hall next Thursday night. Gibson is a fast man and a good bout is assured. McCoy won over Williams last night by the K. O. route in the eighth round. He has some reputation as a boxer, having won a decision over the "Jamaica Kid" sparring partner of champion Dempsey.

Eddie McGowan is looking after Gibson's interests.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

(By REV. P. B. FITZWATER, D. D., Teacher of English Bible in the Moody Bible Institute of Chicago) (Copyright, 1919, Western Newspaper Union)

LESSON FOR SEPTEMBER 28

REVIEW: JESUS OUR SAVIOUR AND KING, OR PARABLES OF THE KINGDOM.

The method of review should be determined by the grade of the class. For the Primary the review should center in the topic, "Jesus and the Children;" the Junior, "Choosing Jesus as Saviour;" Intermediate, "Accepting Christ's Program for Our Lives;" for the Senior and Adult grades the subject of the church, noting its membership, ordinances, worship and service. A better way would be to study more fully the parables of the kingdom as set forth in Matthew 13:44-50.

I. The Parable of the Hidden Treasure (v. 44).

The usual interpretation of this parable, making Christ the hidden treasure for which a sinner must give up everything in order to buy his salvation, must be rejected for the following reasons: (1) Christ is not hidden in a field, but has been lifted up and made a spectacle to the world. (2) Nobody has ever been obliged to buy the world in order to get Christ. (3) Salvation cannot be purchased for it is God's free and gracious gift. (4) No warrant is ever held out to a man to convert his religion after it is obtained.

1. The field. This is the world (v. 45). Fortunately this landmark has been made by Christ himself.

2. The treasure. In Psalm 135:4 we are told that Israel, the chosen people, is his treasure. The same truth is set forth in different places and ways (Deut. 7:6-8; 14:2; 26:18; 32:9, 19). When Christ uttered this parable the ten tribes were already concealed from human observation, and as to the rest of Israel it was a mystery of that which was to follow. The kingdom as to its relation and bearing is now hidden. Christ was primarily sent to the Jews; for their sake the field was bought.

3. The Purchaser: the Son of God (John 3:16).

None but the Son of God had such resources to buy the world.

4. The purchase price. This was the precious blood of the Son of God, which is worth infinitely more than silver and gold and the treasures of the earth (1 Peter 1:13, 18; 1 John 3:9).

II. The Parable of the Merchantman Seeking Goodly Pearls (vv. 45, 46).

1. The merchantman. He is actively engaged in search for pearls. In this search he discovers one pearl of great price. This merchantman is none other than Christ himself. The whole activity of the Father, Son, and Holy Spirit, since the fall of man, has been seeking those who are lost.

2. The purchasing price. The merchantman sold all—Laplace shed himself in order to buy the pearl. The poor lost sinner could not buy Christ. His salvation is without money and without price. Christ did not merely buy him; he took upon the heavenly glory (Phil. 2:9-8) to purchase the one pearl of great price by his own precious blood (1 John 5:25; 1 Pet. 1:18, 19).

3. The pearl of great price. This is the church. The merchantman will find other pearls of great price, but the pearl of great price is the church which he has purchased with his own blood.

III. The Parable of the Drag Net (vv. 47, 50).

This gives us a picture of the consummation of the kingdom. No one can mistake the meaning here. Notice: 1. The sea. The Lord when used in a figurative sense denotes peace and tranquillity (Dan. 7:3; Rev. 17:15). 2. The drag net. The word "net" in the authorized version is properly translated "dragnet." 3. The net drawn to the shore when full.

4. The assortment made by the angels.

5. The destiny of the bad fish, or wicked men.

He Draws Hearts of Men.

On this day when our Lord Jesus Christ was lifted up all sorts of people were drawn to him. There were those who loved him dearly at the foot of the cross. There were scribes, and learned men, and aristocrats, and priests and common people. There were simple peasants from the country, shepherds from the hills, and a motley crowd from the city streets. There were Roman soldiers and Galilean pilgrims. It was a crowd representative of all the world's people, and today when he is lifted up even as of old, he draws to himself the hearts of men.

LALLEY LIGHT and POWER

The Sound Reasons for Lallely Preference

As a rule farmers do not state why they prefer Lallely-Light, except for its savings.

The underlying reasons—the reasons why Lallely has the ability and the soundness to make these savings—are easily understood.

The engine has but three moving parts. There is but little to get out of order or wear out.

It is water-cooled—the most positive and effective way of cooling a gasoline engine, and a big factor in the Lallely's operating economy.

Having big ball bearings, the engine runs with the very minimum of friction and wear.

It is vibrationless, and as quiet as a sewing machine.

It will never annoy you, no matter where you place it.

The Lallely does save time and money and labor—because it is built to last, and to give uniformly satisfactory service.

You should get your own Lallely-Light now—since every day's delay means an actual loss of money to you.

Ask yourself if there is any good reason for doing without Lallely Electric Light and Power this fall and winter.

Then come to see us, or send for us.

The
Long Journey

By WINIFRED L. JEWELL

Rodney Price was mad and ashamed both at the same time. People stared at him and he was humiliated from the fact that they stared also at the big policeman who had just led him from a drinking place and now kindly, though, reprovingly, took him to the corner with the words:

"Go home now, young man, and thank me for saving you your money and perhaps your sense. I fancy you don't know the reputation of the joint you went into."

Rodney Price did not reply. He traced in going into "the joint" a step down an incline whither he had been headed for some time past. He had gone into the place because he had not the moral strength to resist a panacea for a headache, a trembling frame and a general sense of collapse, due to over-indulgence the night previous.

The dutiful and friendly officer saw to it that the man he had rescued was not followed or headed off. He kept his eye on Price until he had turned a corner. Half a square further progressed, the latter stumbled where there was a loose sidewalk tile. He steadied himself and did not fall, although his head was dizzy and a subtle drowsiness was overcoming him. Contact with the obstruction had ripped off the heel of one shoe. Price picked it up and passed on his way seeking a shoe shop and at last came to a sign telling that repairing was done inside.

A woman, her back to him, was holding out two little shoes and explaining that she wanted them ready by noon, when she would call for them. As Price plunged heavily into a seat she addressed the cobbler.

"It's my little one's birthday, Mr. Akers," she said, "and I've promised to take her to a movie this afternoon. The cost will be nothing, mum," observed the gentle hearted cobbler. "I'll send them over before noon, and you can tell your little one that the mending was my present, and if I was a little better off I'd give her a brand new pair."

Rodney Price held his senses dizzying and muddled. Somehow, however, he roused up as a vague recognition of the soft low tone of the woman reached his hearing, but he could not trace out the suggestion. In a mandala way he gained the counter unsteadily.

"Just fix my heel, will you?" he spoke, and handed it and the shoe he had taken off to the cobbler. "And let me snooze for an hour, I'm terribly dozy. When you wake me up have the little girl's shoe fixed, too. I've got an idea. See?"

The old shoemaker did not "see" anything further than an inebriate talking incoherently. When the hour had gone by, however, he came from behind the counter, the mended shoe in his hand. He had some difficulty in arousing Price, who unknowingly was the victim of a drugged drink. The latter put on the shoe, produced a well-filled pocket book, selected a bank note and threw it on the counter.

"No change," he ordered. "Hello!" as his eyes fell upon the little mended shoes, and then his hand passed over his brow confusedly. "Oh, yes, I remember now, poor woman, the child's birthday. And you, good old soul, was to fix the shoes for nothing. A capital job, too, neatly patched and polished up nicely. Here," and he tendered a second bank note to the astonished cobbler. "And here," he added with a reckless laugh, "I'll do my share," and he stuffed a handful of bills in one of the tiny shoes. "Now then, you let me deliver them, won't you? Where does the little one live?"

"Second floor, No. 182, six doors west. There's a sign in front—'dressmaker'."

"All right. Poor little shoes. Poor little child. And me a regular goody two shoes, eh? Well somebody will be happy, and the bewildered shoemaker's visitor left the place unsteadily, the two little shoes in his hand.

His gait was unsteady, his sight blurred, for the drugged drink had not yet lost its effect. He located 182, however, and the sign "dressmaker" and the second floor. About to approach a door he slipped to the floor of the hallway instead, for a second time robbed of his senses by the drug.

"Oh, mamma!" exclaimed the little child, as she chanced to open the door, and, startled, noticed the prostrate man. "Here's someone sick, or asleep, and oh, my shoes! all fixed up beautifully, and oh, mamma! they are full of money!"

Lost in amazement the mother viewed the situation.

When Rodney Price aroused again he lay on a couch in a neat but poorly furnished room. He fancied he was dreaming as a familiar, long sought-for face seemed to flash across his vision. He reviewed the wife abandoned, two years of inebriety, a fortune won in a camp, a search for the loved, despised, a drunk, but now—

War's Effect On
U. S. Population

Experts Puzzled, But Believe Westward Shift Halted By Growth Of Industrial Centers

WASHINGTON, Sept. 17. (United Press.)—Striking changes in the growth and character of the population of the United States are expected to be shown by the 1920 census, preparations for which are under way. The shifting of population because of the war has upset the calculations of census experts, who since 1917 have considered it useless to attempt to estimate population of any other units than states. Before that, it was possible to predict with a fair degree of accuracy the number of persons in any given locality.

The "center of population," it is believed, has stopped its westward movement, which was continuous from 1790 to 1910, when it was located in Bloomington, Ind. This is because industrial cities in the central east, such as Cleveland and Detroit, have been growing at a greatly increased rate during recent years, as have manufacturing centers further east. Formerly the Rocky Mountain and Pacific Coast states increased in population with twice the rapidity of eastern and central states.

During this year, however, certain modifications of the unusual situation may be made. The opening of reclamation projects in the west, the resumption of immigration, and other causes, it is thought, will change the abnormal distribution. There will also be a tendency to return to normal now that the war is ended.

Pronounced changes are expected also in the "constitution of the population"—the ratio of males to females, the proportions of native and foreign stock, and the age distribution. When a city experiences a rapid growth due to industrial and commercial activity, the gain in population is largely made up of persons in the young and early middle ages. Among these persons there will be more men than women. For example, in Oklahoma City, where the population grew nearly 500 percent between 1900 and 1910, the ratio of males to females in the latter year was 126 to 100, and 62 percent of the population was between 15 and 45.

The coming census is also expected to show a continuation of the movement from the country to the city, which has been going on for many decades. A further decrease in the proportion of negro population is expected. In 1900 negroes numbered 11.6 percent and in 1900 10.7 percent. It is expected that the percentage of foreign-born will show a marked decline, due to the discontinuation of immigration. In recent years the native-born population did not increase as rapidly as the foreign-born. Fewer persons will be found, it is predicted, who are unable to speak English. In 1910 this number was 22.8 percent of the population.

The law requires the Census Bureau to make an actual count every 10 years, and an estimate for cities and states every year by arithmetical progression. Since 1917, however, the bureau has not estimated cities. A

NEWS OF OUR NEIGHBORS CURWENSVILLE

Illini Tribe No. 302, Improved Order of Red Men, at a recent session, elected the following members to officer the lodge for the ensuing term: Prophet, J. Emory Daub; Sachem, William L. Holden; Senior Sagamore, Harvey M. Smith; Junior Sagamore, Carl B. Peters. Next Wednesday evening these electives will be installed, and after that service is over, a "smoker" will be indulged in, and addresses made by well known members of the order from out of town. All members are cordially invited to be present on this occasion.

The Crescent Band, in lieu of the McKinley orchestra being unable to be present, furnished the music for the Live Wire Class in the M. E. Church Friday evening. The class and all who were there were highly entertained during the course of the evening by three selections of reading by Fred P. Robinson.

Mr. and Mrs. Steeman, of Alexandria, have returned to their Huntingdon county home, after several days' visit in the home of Mr. D. R. Fleming.

Mr. Harry M. Fry has disposed of his property at Arnold town, along the state highway, to James Lines. Consideration, $700.

Thirty two friends and relatives called on Mrs. Andrew Cupples, who is stopping with her sister, Mrs. Henry Adleman, South Side, last Sunday. Mrs. Cupples resides in Montana, and lately arrived in Curwensville, where she was born and reared, for a month's visit with relatives and former friends.

Mr. Charles Smith, a resident of South Fork, Pa., visited among Curwensville friends this week.

Chair N. Rorabaugh, engaged in the insurance business in New York city, spent Saturday and Sunday visiting with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Rorabaugh.

Mrs. Margula, a resident of Dayton, Ohio, is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Porter, at the farm home in Pike township, close to the borough line.

Mr. Kelly Rapp, now located at Bellwood, Pa., and Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Smith and two sons, of Cairnbrook, Somerset county, visited in the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Rapp, South Side, during the first half of the present week.

Mrs. Edward Norris accompanied her sister, Mrs. W. H. Smith, to a home at Cairnbrook, for a two weeks' visit. Before returning home she will spend some time in Johnstown, Bellwood and several towns.

Mr. Jess Fleming and wife, whose home is at Keewading, Illinois, visited his cousin, George Fleming, of Bloomingtown avenue several days. Mr. Fleming's parents lived in Curwensville a number of years ago, the father, Samuel Fleming, running the mill of sticky sugar at the time still house, which was located near the Susquehanna Hotel. Afterward the visitor to his parents, he expressed surprise at the "high mountain," as he put it, that surrounded the village of his progenitors. He and his wife departed for their western home highly pleased with their visit and the royal treatment accorded them by Curwensville people during their short stay in the vicinity.

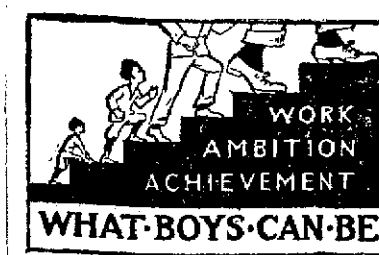

Insurance Agent Rorabaugh placed in his office window yesterday a freak of nature, which caused passers-by to pause and scrutinize it carefully. The curiosity is a twin squash, and is joined together more artistically than could ever be done by human hands.

Irrelevant clouds, under the darkness, entered the garden during the other night and the world's prize pumpkin, on saving for Sunday.

On Thursday evening, Mrs. Howard Hopewell entertained a number of her friends at her cozy home on West Main street.

Sunday will be observed as "Daily Day" in the M. E. Sunday School. It will be a general rally day for the entire school. Besides all of the old scholars and many new ones who are expected to be present, the school will have for its guests, the Home Department, which will be brought to the church and taken home in automobiles. The graduating exercises will be held

THIS COLUMN FOR BOYS AND GIRLS AND PARENTS

A Builder of Ships

By R. S. Alexander, Associate Editor Boys and Girls Newspaper Service
Shipbuilding is work only for the boy of a genuine mechanical turn of mind. Nothing more complicated than a dreadnaught or a great ocean liner has ever been built. It is not like an ordinary building; it is more like "a city that is compact together."

If American ships are to be built in competition with foreign yards, then industrious boys, who know how to use their brains as well as their hands, are going to be needed. They must solve the big problems of building ships cheaper.

There are two main ways of becoming a shipbuilder. One is to start work in a shipyard as a mechanic's helper; the other is to study naval architecture at a university.

In a shipbuilding plant there are fitters, fitters, erectors, riveters, chippers and caulkers, bolters, rimers, drillers, carpenters, crannemen, packers, pipelayers, electricians, checkers, timekeepers, and forge and machine shop workers.

Of all these trades, the three named first, the trades of fitter, riveter, and erecter, are the best for learning actual shipbuilding. These men work with the blue prints. Construction foremen are most often chosen from their number.

Further information for the boy who would like to be a shipbuilder can be obtained by writing to the Education and Training Section, Emergency Fleet Corporation, 140 North Broad Street, Philadelphia. Good courses in Naval Architecture are offered by such universities as the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, Boston; Cornell University, Ithaca, N. Y.; the University of Michigan, Ann Arbor; and Webb Academy, Portland Heights, New York. In Webb Academy, all tuition and expenses are free, providing the boy can pass the severe entrance examinations. It has been estimated that the graduates of this college about $50,000 a year.

An Expert in Letter Writing

By Elizabeth Mater
"Helen," said Mr. Johnson to his laughter in the eighth grade at school, "whatever you learn, learn how to write a letter."

"Two weeks ago I told my secretary to offer five carloads of steel bars, 'subject to prior sale.' She carelessly let out those four words, and, as a result we had to buy ten more carloads at a loss of $900.00 in order to keep up our reputation for always delivering what we offer unconditionally."

"Stenographers are common; but no one in twenty can write a letter. We have $25.00 a week, and quick advancement, for every expert letter writer we can find."

Helen decided to become an expert in letter writing. Soon she discovered one of the big secrets. "I know what you mean to say," she explained to her father, "but the person who gets the letter doesn't. All he knows is what you write. Therefore I must write exact what I mean."

Several weeks later Helen showed some of her letters to her father. "This is first-rate," he said, "clear, direct, brief, but they are about as good as you can get. You put more life in it than you better to say, 'Our factory overhauled the whole world' on 'The Roosevelt' sold that to the world with the Africans because he said he had where they made the watches? Facts like that are just as good as lies and catch on."

Helen now set to work to make the words to the thousands of letters, Washington, D. C., and green (long list of names) and letters, etc. The city library and the post office helped her pick out three good letters. She smiled and said, "I am very glad to see how you are getting on. The one you sent me yesterday, she was the best of the correspondence of a big business."

U. S. ARTILLERY ALLOWED TO RUST AND BE DESTROYED

SANDUSKY, Sept. 22.—Millions of dollars worth of field guns, artillery, supply motors and smaller ordnance bought by Uncle Sam during the war are rusting in open fields at the Erie proving grounds, adjoining Camp Perry on the Lake Erie shore. It is estimated that there is sufficient field artillery to fight the Battle of the Argonne over again.

Guns with their delicate recoil mechanism entirely exposed, mobile machine shops with their costly drill presses, lathes, planers and other equipment are lying on the ground, while five hundred men work against time to complete storerooms which were not authorized by the Government until after the costly material they were to house had begun to arrive.

Lieut. Col. James Kirk, in command of the proving grounds, is trying hard to have the shelters completed by Oct. 1 but has slight hope of succeeding.

Parks of Artillery.

Exposed thus are American-made French 75's and 155's, American-made British guns and great twelve-inch rifles mounted on railway trucks, and line after line of motorized machine shops, supply trains, tanks, tractors and field trains.

The big guns have never fired a hostile shot. A few months ago they arrived from the various plants, spic and span and as perfect—and almost as delicate in a great many instances—as a watch. Now they lie among tall weeds, with dust and rust on the breech-locks and on the exposed parts of the recoil retarders, the secret of which was given to America by France.

Rusted by Rust.

So delicate are these recoil absorbers that rust within the highly polished cylinders renders the gun useless. Still trainload after trainload of new equipment is arriving every day to be unloaded in the open fields.

Millions of dollars were spent at Camp Perry and the proving grounds just prior to and following the entrance of the United States into the war. To-day they are going to waste.

ODD AND INTERESTING

The Chinese point of view of maritime disasters is peculiar. The duty of a Chinese sailor is well defined. He must save the men first, then the children, and finally the women. This is on the theory that men are most valuable to the State, that adoptive parents can be found for children, and that women without husbands are destitute.

Honesty among reformers is so severe a fault that thefts are unknown, though locks, bolts and bars are never used. Of the only two acts of felony within the last eight or nine centuries, one was committed by a German settler, who was compelled to make restitution to his victim, and then given the option of death or speedy emigration.

The building of St. Peter's Cathedral in Rome, was started in 1450, but was not entirely finished till 1886. It has been estimated that the total cost was not far from $75,000,000.

Worth While Pointers In Stove Buying. See That Base

Note the construction of the seamless base—the manner and fit of the door. Ask us why we use a double fire pot. Discover why no clinkers can form in this stove. Test the boiler-iron body. Examine the fitting. Then let "genuine goodness" determine your choice. The ROUND OAK (burns all fuels) has been the standard for two generations and is still conceded to be the stove supreme. Come in and see it.

Gay Calico Frocks for Outings

We have some faithful friends among cotton fabrics that often lapse into more or less complete oblivion. When they are about forgotten they emerge at the call of some great and enterprising customer. Having dropped out of general favor they become unusual and exclusive and thereby much to be desired by the smart set, and then we are refreshed by such examples of wholesome charm and simplicity as that which appears in the calico frock pictured. It could not be much simpler than it is. It is artfully unpretentious, just the thing for the artless millionnaire who intends to get back to nature and chase a few country butterflies by way of a change.

This particular calico frock is red and white, like a stick of peppermint candy. In fact they have much the same flavor. The plain, straight skirt, you will notice, does not aspire to a very wide hem such as is allowed in organdies and lavens, but it is shirred in several rows at the waistline into the narrow belt. All the sewing on this frock is carefully done. The old-fashioned pockets are outlined with a very narrow fancy braid of white cotton and have the simplest of very narrow black ribbon set on them—a little crease for being so pretty and quaint. The waist, as simple and plain as the skirt, is finished at the "V"-shaped neck with a wide plain collar of white and a white lawn chemise fills it in daintily. Altogether this is a dress that is worth the while of an artist in clothes, and it is very pretty. Perhaps the same design is responsible for the brown and white small-checkedingham, made up with the introduction of white lawn in accessories, with a hat to match, that outshines its more expensive rivals on the street. These familiar materials and unpretentious dresses have their own charm and are in a class by themselves.

MOSTLY SWEATERS

If you've but one sweater
You'd really much better
Go get yourself three or four more
For here on the Coast
It's the obvious boast
Each damsel owns fully a score.

BY MARGARET RHODE
(Written for The United Press)

ANYWHERE IN SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA, Sept. 20.—The native costume of the Southern California female aborigine consists mostly of a sweater—one for each day in the week. The more detail of a sport skirt or a pair of riding breeches to accompany it make up the appropriate and attractive ensemble. The favored and omnipresent attire is varied only by the substitution of a jacket for a sweater for one or two of the days out of the weekly seven.

Back east we think we know a thing or two about sweaters, but the California sweater is to the Eastern garment what a riot of California roses is to the floral offerings of our bland New England coast.

Variety is the spice of sweaters and all the changes that colored yarns and knitting needles can spell, to say nothing of the crochet hook, have been brought into play to deck the native daughter.

Save for a few filet crochet sweaters of silk, the Golden Girls haven't become enmeshed so completely in these delightful sweaters as their Eastern cousins. Their penchant seems to be for a knitted slip-on wool sweater whose elbow sleeves finish in a full frill of the knitted wool and which ends its knit and part career in a full ripply peplum around the hips. These are usually of two colors—the peplum, sleeve ruffles and a border around the V shaped neck being in contrasting hue from the body of the sweater.

Aside from these fussy little slip-ons, the more conventional sweater coat of heavy knitted silk is the best dress-up sweater. A stunning one of navy blue silk with a collar and fold continued all the way down both sides of the front of fluffy white angora is being worn by the striking wife of author Peter B. Kyne, the famous Californian. She wears it with a white tulle Baronne satin skirt, white pumps and navy stockings and a broad brimmed sailor hat of navy blue velvet with an entire under-brim of long-haired white beaver exactly matching up the navy trimmed blue sweater.

When it comes to the slip-on smocks, they are even more fascinating than the sweaters. The most artistic are of cotton Japanese crepe, applied in a single rose of contrasting crepe on the left breast, blanket stitched in silk or wool. All edges of the smock are also outlined with the same crepe.

A lovely lavender smock sports a pink rose with green stem and leaves, while a royal purple shows a rose of vivid flame and a buttercup yellow is blanket stitched in black with a rose of two-shaded purple.

Just why those sleeveless, slip-on garments are dubbed smocks is an enigma, for many a smock shows they resemble more a jumper bottom, with their blanket stitch bordered belts. Even the loose three quarter regulation artistic cut smocks, long sleeved and evolved of voile or thinner cotton crepe are smockless as to stitching, but they are fascinatingly stitched in wool and appliqued in lovely garlands of differently tinted, cut out crepe flowers—morning glories, roses or even first fruits like apples or the festive cherry and the purple grape.

But bands stitched and appliqued to match up these smocks are made of floppy sunhats of coarse bright straw and complete a set that few can well resist. Certainly when East is West East must be smocked and sweaters to repletion or be a dowdy dame indeed. For to be out of a sweater out in California is to be out of style and out of luck, as well as out of the picture.

BUSINESS MEN AND BANKERS OF WORLD MEET NEXT WEEK

NEW YORK, Sept. 27.—Results of great importance bearing on foreign trade and reconstruction are expected from the gathering of leading business men and bankers of the United States, and representatives of Great Britain, France, Italy and Belgium, at the international trade conference to be held in Atlantic City next week. Underlying the conference is the purpose to obtain universal action now, to set in motion the wheels of commerce and industry, to the end that trade processes may be restored throughout the world.

The Chamber of Commerce of the United States laid the foundation for the conference by inviting the allied countries to send their best men here to meet American business men and to help construct a program for the future, so that trade will flow without interruption.

Following the conference, the plan is for the foreign delegations to tour the principal cities east of the Mississippi, which will afford further opportunity for acquaintance and discussion between United States business men and those of other countries.

Each of the allied countries has sent a delegation of five members, together with numerous assistants. Among the foreign delegates are cabinet officers and others noted for their ability and experience in handling trade problems.

The British delegation is headed by Sir Arthur Shirley Benn, a member of parliament and a prominent captain of industry in England. Other members of the delegation are Marshall Stevens, M. P., one of the founders of the Manchester Ship Canal and an authority on transportation; J. G. Jenkins, former Premier of Australia; John King, chairman of the National Light Castings Association, of Glasgow, and A. Barton Kent, of London.

The honorary president of the French delegation, which includes officials and business men who can speak with authority for the most important divisions of French industry, is M. Clementel, Minister of Commerce, and his adjutant, M. Tirman, Counselor of State, who represented France at the San Francisco exposition some years ago. Other members of the French delegation are M. Schneider, head of the famous gun works at Le Creusot; M. De Neuville, one of the leading bankers of Paris; M. Prevot, president of the Union of Wholesale Food Syndicates, and M. Mazot, general secretary of the French High Commission.

No less distinguished is the personnel of the delegation which Italy has sent to represent her in the deliberations of the international conference. The Italian delegation is headed by Senator Marconi, the famous inventor of the wireless. Associated with him are members of the Italian delegation, are Silvio Crespi, food controller in Italy during the war; Pio Peroni, a prominent shipbuilder and ironmaster; Salvatore Tagliavia, mayor of the city of Palermo; G. Quartieri, a celebrated manufacturer of chemicals, and Marco Cassini, who is president of the Associated Italian Chambers of Commerce.

The Belgian representatives in the conference will be: Aloys van de Vyvere, former Minister of Finance of Belgium; M. Janssens, director of the National Bank of Belgium; Canon Lagrand, president of the Chamber of Commerce of Mons; M. de Groote, president of the Chamber of Commerce of Antwerp, and M. Van Denen, a representative of Louvain University.

RALLY DAY AT TRINITY METHODIST SUNDAY SCHOOL

Sunday will be a day of special interest in Trinity Methodist church. Rally Day in the Sunday school at 9:30 a. m. promises to bring together the largest attendance of the year. Twenty young people will present a pageant entitled "Youth and the New Day." Mr. Lawrence will lead the singing. Twenty-five boys and girls will march from the primary to the main school, present a brief program under the direction of Mrs. Don Gintory and each scholar will receive a Bible in recognition of the advancement to the junior department.

At the morning preaching hour, an opportunity will be given for the baptism of children. The Junior League meets at 2:30 p. m. The Epworth League 6:30 p. m. and the evening preaching hour is 7:30 o'clock.

Visitors and strangers are cordially invited to enjoy the hours of worship with us.

BARTERING PLACES

Back in the centuries the shops or stores you know started in something on the order of public bartering places.

What has taken their place is the modern store, where you can buy what you like just when you want it. You don't have to buy a year's supply all at once as of old. The storekeeper keeps it for you, and you buy only what you need as you need it.

The merchants and the manufacturer and advertiser have brought this useful state of affairs about for your convenience. You don't even have to go to see everything and every shop to make your choice nowadays.

The advertisers relieve you of this trouble, by bring their goods to you in the advertisements. Before the days of the development of advertising, you would have had to visit a dozen or a score of places weigh and choose, and then not be sure you had made the best selection. Advertising has made it possible to know just what will interest you.

Just think what this means: You order now without worry or trouble because advertising tells you all about the things you want to buy before you buy them.

Read the advertisements and think about them with this in mind. They are there to serve you.

CHAMPIONSHIP CHECKER GAMES AT Y. M. C. A.

The championship player of Clearfield, N. F. Hoffman, met his match last night when "Jimmy" Donaldson, a soldier from DuBois, journeyed over the mountains to play for the championship of the county. A fair sized crowd saw the games. The first two games were draws, then Mr. Donaldson won a game, then two more draws then the local player won one and after this there were three more draws and the match ended in a tie for honors.

Any person wishing to join a checker tournament will please hand in their name at the office.

PRESBYTERIANS

Much to our regret and disappointment the chapel will not be ready for occupancy until next Sabbath. There has been a great amount of work to be done, and help was difficult to procure. Those in charge of the repairs have done everything possible to give us the chapel for tomorrow but could not do it.

Dr. Reeve will preach in the Baptist church Sabbath morning at 10 o'clock. The Sabbath school will meet in the Lutheran church at 11:45. Attend these services, and be ready to rally next Sabbath in our own church home.

DRESS OF NAVY GEORGETTE

ROMPERS FOR THE KIDDIES

Suggestions of Suitable Materials and Decorations for Playtime and Dress Occasions.

The baby who is brought up without an intimate acquaintance with rompers is to be sympathized with. Never was there so comfortable a style, and now that decorative handwork has taken these wee garments under its wing, never has there been a more attractive style for the playtime of the littlest member of the family.

Materials for the rompers vary from flimsy to wash silk and include seersucker, chambray, cotton crepe, linen and unbleached muslin. All admit the decorative touch. It may be smocking, which in the case of soft materials, is always lovely. The smocking can be used to excellent advantage on the wash silks built on the regulation romper pattern. It gathers in the fullness at the front of the neck and at the bottom of the sleeves and is done, of course, in a contrasting color. Fleshy color smocking in light blue is a fetching color scheme.

One model that is differently attractive has a kimono sleeve instead of the set-in variety. Another has bloomer legs instead of the opening right across the bottom, which, by the way, is better for very young children. The former kimono top uses, besides the blue daisies and outlined bluebird in the front, rows of feathers stitching to hold the fullness in the proper place and thus give the kimono cut a semblance of shape.

A contrasting belt of white with bunny and outlining in yellow gives the appearance of separate trousers to a bloomer model in tan chambray. Just contrasting frills of white and pearl buttons make another chambray model as dainty a little garment as one could wish. But the prize really must go to a little dainty affair in white silk with real Irish lace plait edging around the collar and sleeve, then blue French knots to match the blue cross-stitched geese on its belt.

KEYNOTE OF DRESS

Some of the new mushroom hats have bandeaux inside.

Little belts of bright-colored ribbon are popular for the white costume.

Black satin ribbon is arranged in spiral fashion on a black satin gown.

Individuality is unquestionably the keynote of present season dressing.

Hatpins with flower heads of brilliantly varnished kid are a Paris novelty.

Few of them are now permitting themselves to be bound by ironical style rulings, either as to color or fabric, skirt length or width.

Crope de chine has had so many songs sung in its favor that little needs to be said. It is the fabric that for centuries has been found by the Chinese to serve mankind well.

New silhouettes come and go, but a careful study of the sartorial scenery in any fashionable gathering place will convince the observer that the best dressed women are wearing what is becoming.

Pongee Popularity.

As sure as the coming of summer, pongee in some form appears. This year there are lovely pongee parasols. Some are mounted on brown frames and sticks, with no other trimming than brown cords on the handles and brown tassels on the ends. Another shows lovely blue butterflies embroidered all over the inside of the parasol, with blue cord and blue ends to the sticks.

One thousand six hundred wagon loads of dirt are removed daily from the streets of London.

EMMA GOLDMAN TO BE DEPORTED WHEN RELEASED

JEFFERSON CITY, MO., Sept. 26.—When Emma Goldman is released from the penitentiary here tomorrow, upon the completion of her two-year sentence for conspiring to prevent the operation of the Selective Service Act, it is likely that she will be given an early opportunity to fulfill the desire expressed at the time of her conviction that she might be permitted to return to Russia to fight for the dear Bolsheviks.

The department of justice has served notice on counsel for Miss Goldman that she will be arrested immediately upon her release and held for deportation hearing. Under a recent Federal law aliens who have been twice convicted of a crime may be deported to the country from whence they came. Previous to her arrest and conviction in the draft conspiracy case Miss Goldman served a year in New York on a charge of inciting others to riot. Under the law she thus becomes liable to deportation and it is probable she will be returned to Russia, in which country she was born.

For many years Emma Goldman has been the most conspicuous woman anarchist and foe of the established order resident in the United States, and her affiliations with the cult of lawlessness in Europe have been close. She was born in Russia in 1870 of Jewish parents. At the age of sixteen she came to America and took up her residence in Rochester, N. Y. Early in life she developed nihilist tendencies of an aggressive nature, and before she was twenty she became associated with the worst anarchists in America. In 1897 she was arrested while addressing a Russian air meeting in Union Square, New York, and convicted of "inciting to riot." For this offense she spent ten months in Blackwell's Island Prison.

After the assassination of President McKinley in 1901 she again became an object of police surveillance. She was arrested on various charges and spent many days in jail.

QUICK AND ECONOMICAL TRANSPORTATION

THE automatic locking differential, a feature of the Nash Quad as well as all Nash trucks, practically prevents loss of traction by spinning of the driving wheels. This makes it especially suited to the work of Lumber and Timber concerns.

The fact that the Quad drives and brakes on all four wheels, giving it practically double the traction efficiency of ordinary trucks, makes it still more attractive to industries whose hauling difficulties are extraordinarily hard.

EVERY CLEARFIELD COUNTY CITIZEN SHOULD HELP COMPILE HERO LISTS

State Secretary Appeals To People to Assist Him In Compiling Lists Of Those Who Were Killed Or Died While In the Service

SEND INFORMATION TO JOHN M. BAIN AT ONCE

John M. Bain, secretary to the Local Selective Service Board, on September 10th, 1919, received from Dr. McKinley, Secy., Pennsylvania War History Commission, the following list of fatalities during the late war, with the request that same be revised. This list is compiled from the official records at Washington, and from the casualty lists as published. It is inaccurate. There are a number of men whose names appear hereafter who have returned home. Some of these I know personally, the others I would like to be advised of.

There are others known by me to have paid the great price whose names do not appear hereon. There are others, no doubt, to me unknown. These I would like to have from interested people in the several sections of the county.

It is hoped that we may at this time get an accurate record of our soldier dead. The assistance of every man and woman in the county is earnestly solicited in getting this record accurate and complete at the earliest possible date.

PASSENGERS ON HEMLOCK LIMITED VISIT COUNTRY

Passenger's on Supt. Johnson's "hemlock special" enjoyed an extended visit in the vicinity of J. S. Benham's farm across the river from Hyde City yesterday morning. The train from Tyrone due here at 11:15 succeeded in making its way without mishap as far as the point mentioned and when the engine drives attempted a 20-mile an hour burst of speed on the straight stretch above Antea's the creaking old iron horse with a snort and snarl right down in the harness, so to speak, and refused to haul.

The engineer and his sidekick hopped down off the ancient relic, which is a fit companion to the aged and decrepit coaches which follow it complainingly from day to day, and after pattering around it for a while and knocking the rust scales off here and there discovered that the engine had broken a spring.

On account of the jaded and asthmatic condition of the outfit which taxes the strength daily to get the regular load over the hills from Tyrone no excess baggage in the way of fixin's and extra parts are allowed to be hauled and the mechanics in the crew were at a loss how to proceed for a while. However old resourceful Conductor Dick Farrell and his celtic ingenuity was again equal to the occasion and making a shrewd deal for half an abandoned wagon from farmer Joe Winters, the needed part was improvised there, from and after a long hungry wait the damage was repaired and the train limped into port at Curwensville.

GOON ACQUITTED ON CHARGE OF MANSLAUGHTER

Jury After Deliberation Of Five Hours Finds For The Defendant But Lays Costs

MUCH CONFLICTING EVIDENCE

J. A. Goon, the Woodland landlord who was alleged to have directly or indirectly caused the death of Repossi by striking him, was found not guilty by the jury after they had deliberated for five hours.

While the weight of evidence was apparently against the defendant it appears that the jury gave Mr. Goon the benefit of the doubt in the dispute over the striking of the blow. According to the evidence, two men saw the blow struck, one of whom was partially blind, while another man said he saw Mr. Goon draw back his fist to strike but turned his head and did not see Goon unwind.

A fourth eye witness, who the evidence showed was closer to Goon and Repossi than any of the others, declared no blow was struck.

Mr. Goon was a very good witness. He told a straightforward story and did not deviate therefrom in any respect.

Mr. Liveright made the plea to the jury for the defense starting in at 3:00 and concluding his remarks at 4:12. He carefully reviewed the evidence adduced, pointing out what, in the opinion of the defense, were the weak links in the chain of facts attempted to be forged about him by the Commonwealth.

He was followed by District Attorney Arnold in a masterful plea of 33 minutes duration in which he went carefully over and thru the Commonwealth's evidence.

Judge Bell then delivered his charge to the jury, occupying 20 minutes in defining the law governing this class of case and elucidating for the jury the legal propositions involved and the weight to be given the evidence adduced by the opposing sides.

The jury retired at 5:10 o'clock and took five hours and five minutes in making up their minds and agreeing upon their verdict at 10:15 they filed into the court room and announced that they had found Mr. Goon not guilty but directed that he pay the costs.

The costs in the case amounted to $226.84, and were paid by Mr. Goon this morning.

PLAY BRIDGE FINALS

The Finals of the Bridge Tournament of the Clearfield-Curwensville Country Club were played off Friday night in the parlor of the Dimeling Hotel.

Since early in June, the Tournament has been in progress at the Country Club, being held every Saturday afternoon, in which thirty-two ladies played. The total scores were kept and finally the eight highest scores out of the thirty-two, played last night for the championship of the Club. The championship was won by Mrs. W. S. Piper, of Clearfield. The scores of the contestants in the final eight are as follows:

Mrs. W. S. Piper 3722
Miss Edith Patton 3422
Mrs. H. S. Whitman 2648
Mrs. C. S. Russell 2509
Mrs. Singleton Bell 2339
Mrs. R. D. Swope 2195
Mrs. W. F. Powell 1822
Miss Virginia Bigler 1602

Messrs. H. W. Hartwick, A. W. Bigler and A. M. Liveright acted as judges and score keepers, and Cecil F. Wilson as time keeper. Handsome prizes will be awarded the winner of the Tournament and also of the second highest score.

MORE MEN RETURN TO WORK AT MILLS OF SMOKEY CITY

By Fred S. Ferguson. PITTSBURGH—The steel companies have launched an extensive publicity campaign to get the men to return to work. All the Pittsburgh morning newspapers carried a full page today headed, "Go Back to Work Monday."

The strike situation was generally unchanged today, although the steel companies appeared to be making steady gains. No disorders were reported as the day shifts went on duty.

All mills in the Monongahela Valley reported a large number of men returning to work. 13 of the 15 mills of the Allegheny Steel Company are now operating.

New Kensington is the only point in the lower Allegheny valley where all plants are suspended.

Bitter feeling was evinced in labor circles today over coroner's verdict over the death of Mrs. Shellins, which was "killed in rioting" at Brackenridge. The strikers contend she was deliberately murdered.

The Carnegie Steel offices today announced that if the turn out of men tomorrow night is as good as at present, the steel strike is shot. While a general return is expected Monday, they do not feel that the full effect of the return will be noticed until the middle of the week.

Operators claim a significant point in the report that many mills closed before the strike was called, planning to resume operation Monday. These plants include the McKeesport Tin Plate Company, employing 8,000 and the Pittsburgh Steel Company. The Homestead mills have a small but steady gain in both production and men.

For the first time since the strike was called, employees in the Duquesne mills reported for work today carrying dinner pails.

FOSTER COMMITTEE CALLS FOR STRIKE AT BETHLEHEM

PITTSBURGH—A strike of 40,000 employees of the Bethlehem Steel Company, was called by the steel workers' national committee. The strike is to become effective at 6 o'clock Monday morning. The action was taken after Secretary Foster laid before the full committee, his letter requesting a conference, and President Grant's letter refusing a conference with the union heads. Foster declared that the Bethlehem employees were highly organized and that they had voted 100 per cent. in favor of the strike. The final decision to call the strike, was reached with the full consent of the committee. Foster characterized as newspaper reports, statements that at New Castle and other points, the mills were resuming operation. He declared he was still satisfied with the progress of the strike.

DEER VISITS CHILDREN'S HOME

A fine big doe deer slipped down out of the woods near the Clearfield rick company's plant at Riverview Thursday afternoon and attempted to cross over to the river through the grounds at the Children's Home. Bud Lee happened along in his "rattling good" automobile about that time and the "rattle" was too much for the deer and she beat it back for the woods.

$35,000,000 or $6,000,000 Lives

The Joint Distribution committee, the disbursing agency of the Jewish War Relief Committee, is expending more than $2,000,000 a month now to keep alive the Jewish people and the non-Jewish peoples in these afflicted countries.

The ships the "Westward Ho" and "Democracy" make constant trips, and for the period ending September 1st, 1919, approximately $30,000,000 has already been spent.

This year $35,000,000 is required to sustain the lives of these people and America, always generous, is asked to supply this sum in the campaign which will begin in the State of Pennsylvania October 6th and continue through October 13th.

A Lesson in Frugality

Huge as the figures seem, this is less than $5.00 a year per person, with which to provide food, clothing, fuel, shelter, medical attention, drugs and the other necessities of life.

Two cents a day to keep alive an old man, woman, or young boy or girl, whose only fault is that they have been borne to a life of war suffering, is truly a small sum indeed to ask of a nation whose most frugal citizens must spend at least $500 a year for sustenance, clothing and

Jewish Race In War-Torn Nations Of Europe Will Get Sympathy And Assistance Here

PURPOSE OF CAMPAIGN TOLD

The attention of a civilized and humane world has been focused on the terrible persecution of the Jewish race in many parts of the far East and Eastern Europe. No less the Belgians or the French, the Jews in Russia-Poland and other parts of the war torn world have suffered unendurable privations and injuries. Without a country of their own, a haven in which to find refuge, or a country to protect them, there are large settlements of Jews in these foreign countries who, because of the war, have been left destitute and without means of living.

While members of the race have endeavored to give the necessary assistance, Christians throughout the world, have heard the call of humanity and universal brotherhood and in response to this call there has come about a national organization, disregarding race and creed, which will conduct a campaign for the raising of funds for the purposes hereinafter set forth.

The campaign in Clearfield will be conducted by Col. Fred B. Kerr, chairman, assisted by the following citizen's committee:

Hon. J. Frank Snyder
Hon. Singleton Bell
Hon. Al. O. Smith

Starvation is Cause of Campaign

Six million souls, old men, old women and little children in Poland, Lithuania, Russia, Palestine, Galicia, Turkey, Syria, Roumania, Greece and Bulgaria are in imminent danger of starving to death this winter.

The seriousness of this condition is indicated by a statement of Herbert Hoover, who says that at least one million people will die of starvation in Eastern Europe this winter—and this despite the combined efforts of American relief agencies.

Countless others will perish from the horrible slow torture of hunger and cold unless America comes immediately to their aid.

The reports of investigators of the American Red Cross and other relief agencies show that in Poland hardly a child under five years old remains alive. There are no able-bodied young men—no strong young women. The old, the maimed, the emaciated children (more than 800,000 of these) are entirely dependent upon America.

At best these peoples and millions in the other war-stricken countries can be kept from starvation—they can be kept alive until the industries in the nations are resumed, if this campaign is successful.

The Need of Funds

The Jewish War Relief Committee did not participate in the funds raised in the United War Work Campaign. The Jewish Welfare Board, entirely independent and distinct, whose function was to minister to sailors and soldiers only, did benefit in that campaign. This one is entirely for the civilian population in Europe, Palestine and Siberia, which is absolutely destitute.

ENTIRE TRANSPORTATION SYSTEM OF ENGLAND TIED UP BY BIG STRIKE

LONDON, Sept. 27—Great Britain today was involved in the most extensive strike in the country's memory. Stoppage of the entire railroad system at midnight opened the first battle in England's history directly between the government and organized labor. Both sides were highly organized and are prepared for a finished fight. With more than one half million men affected by the walk out, and the country's whole transportation system paralyzed, the country's first precaution today was to prepare against starvation.

The Food Ministry sprung a big surprise when it revealed the existence of a secret food reserve in London which it was estimated is sufficient to supply the city for six weeks.

Millions are Destitute

The Jewish population of Eastern Europe is entirely deprived of the opportunity to be self-supporting. At industries are at a standstill. The trader and merchant of the small town has been driven into the cities where he had added largely to the problems of unemployment. Today 80 per cent. of the Jewish population of Europe is absolutely dependent upon the relief funds furnished by the Joint Distribution committee. The Jew of Europe has gained a large measure of political freedom from the war, but his misery has not been lessened—it has been accentuated by the end of the hostilities. The accumulation of more than four years of war horrors has left these people probably in the greatest destitution ever known in the history of the world.

Conditions are Terrible

The reports of investigators of the American Red Cross and other relief agencies show that in Poland hardly a child under five years old remains alive. There are no able-bodied young men—no strong young women. The old, the maimed, the emaciated children (more than 800,000 of these) are entirely dependent upon America.

Supervisors of JORDAN IN COURT FOR BAD ROADS

Following the completion of the Goon case yesterday afternoon, the case of Commonwealth vs. Messrs. Gorman, Young and Thurston, Supervisors of Jordan township, was called. In this case Alex Bloom, of Knox township, is prosecuting the Supervisors for maintaining the road into the village of McCartney in such condition that it is a menace and nuisance to the community.

The prosecutor, in driving over this road in November of last year, had his automobile drop into a hole in the road, breaking a spring and causing several fractures of the ten commandments before it was possible to get the damaged machine out of the mud.

This is the first case in Clearfield county where Supervisors have been proceeded against for failure to keep the roads under their jurisdiction, in proper repair, and if M. Bloom wins out, there will no doubt be lots of business in this line for the criminal courts of the future.

The Supervisors are represented by A. R. Chase, Esq., and they say that while the road in question may not be as smooth, level and well kept as a marble floor, it is certainly piling things up pretty well when a citizen of Knox township can navigate safely the roads of his own township in their present condition, and then hustle his neighboring townships Supervisors into court for coming to grief just over the line.

BOXING BOUT

Clearfield sports will welcome the news that their local hope, Ike Gibson, is to get back in the ring. Last evening at Altoona Gibson issued a challenge to the winner of the McCoy-Williams bout, as a result of which, McCoy the winner accepted the challenge and the fight will be staged at Clearfield Park Exhibition Hall next Thursday night. Gibson is a fast man and a good bout is assured. McCoy won over Williams last night by the K. O. route in the eighth round. He has some reputation as a boxer, having won a decision over the "Jamaica Kid" sparring partner of champion Dempsey.

Eddie McGowan is looking after Gibson's interests.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

(By REV. P. B. FITZWATER, D. D., Teacher of English Bible in the Moody Bible Institute of Chicago)
(Copyright, 1919, Western Newspaper Union)

LESSON FOR SEPTEMBER 23

REVIEW: JESUS OUR SAVIOUR AND KING, OR PARABLES OF THE KINGDOM.

The method of review should be determined by the grade of the class. For the Primary the review should center in the topic, "Jesus and the Children;" the Junior, "Choosing Jesus as Saviour;" Intermediate, "Accepting Christ's Program for Our Lives;" for the Senior and Adult grades the subject of the church, noting its membership, ordinances, worship and service. A better way would be to study more fully the parables of the kingdom as set forth in Matthew 13:44-50.

I. The Parable of the Hidden Treasure (v. 13).

The usual interpretation of this parable, making Christ the hidden treasure for which a sinner must give up everything in order to buy his salvation, must be rejected for the following reasons: (1) Christ is not hidden in a field, but has been lifted up and made a spectacle to the world. (2) Nobody has ever been obliged to buy the world in order to get Christ. (3) Salvation cannot be purchased for it is God's free and glorious gift. (4) No warrant is ever held out to a man to convert his religion after it is obtained.

1. The field. This is the world (v. 13). Fortunately this landmark has been made by Christ himself.

2. The treasure. In Psalm 135:4 we are told that Israel, the chosen people, is his treasure. The same truth is set forth in different places and ways (Deut. 7:3-6; 14:2; 26:18; 32:9, 19). When Christ uttered this parable the ten tribes were already concealed from human observation, and as to the rest of Israel it was a mystery of that which was to follow. The kingdom as to its relation and bearing is now hidden. Christ was primarily sent to the Jews; for their sake the field was bought.

3. The Purchaser: the Son of God (John 3:16).

None but the Son of God had such resources to buy the world.

4. The purchase price. This was the precious blood of the Son of God, which is worth infinitely more than silver and gold and the treasures of the earth (1 Peter 1:13, 18; 1 John 3:9).

II. The Parable of the Merchantman Seeking Goodly Pearls (vv. 45, 46).

1. The merchantman. He is actively engaged in search for pearls. In this search he discovers one pearl of great price. This merchantman is none other than Christ himself. The whole activity of the Father, Son, and Holy Spirit, since the fall of man, has been seeking those who are lost.

2. The purchasing price. The merchantman sold all—Lapover-shed himself in order to buy the pearl. The poor lost sinner could not buy Christ. His salvation is without money and without price. Christ did not merely buy him, he loved him, and he loved him to the death (Phil. 2:8).

3. The pearl of great price. This is the church. The merchantman will find other pearls of great price, but the pearl of great price is the church which he has purchased with his own blood.

4. The Parable of the Drag Net (vv. 17, 18).

This gives us a picture of the consummation of the kingdom. No one can mistake the meaning here. Note: 1. The sea. The Lord when used in a figurative sense denotes peace and gentleness (Dan. 7:3; Rev. 17:15).

2. The drag net. The word "net" in the authorized version is properly translated "dragnet."

3. The net drawn to the shore when full.

4. The assortment made by the angels.

5. The destiny of the bad fish, or wicked men.

He Draws Hearts of Men.

On this day when our Lord Jesus Christ was lifted up all sorts of people were drawn to him. There were those who loved him dearly at the foot of the cross. There were scribes, and Pharisees, and Sadducees, and priests and common people. There were simple peasants from the country, shepherds from the hills, and a motley crowd from the city streets. There were Roman soldiers and Galilean pilgrims. It was a crowd representative of all the world's people, and today when he is lifted up even as of old, he draws to himself the hearts of men.

The Work That God Appoints.

I am not bound to make the world 20 right, but only to discover and to do with cheerful heart the work that God appoints.—John 9:3-5.

Pass That Day in Peace.

You have only a day to pass on earth; so get as to pass that day in peace.—De Lamerzelle.

To Live in Peace.

Peace is the first and best way to live in peace, we must be in to suffer many things.—De Lamerzelle.

LALLEY LIGHT and POWER

The Sound Reasons for Lallely Preference

As a rule farmers do not state why they prefer Lallely-Light, except for its savings.

The underlying reasons—the reasons why Lallely has the ability and the soundness to make these savings—are easily understood.

The engine has but three moving parts. There is but little to get out of order or wear out.

It is water-cooled—the most positive and effective way of cooling a gasoline engine, and a big factor in the Lallely's operating economy.

Having big ball bearings, the engine runs with the very minimum of friction and wear.

It is vibrationless, and as quiet as a sewing machine.

It will never annoy you, no matter where you place it.

The Lallely does save time and money and labor—because it is built to last, and to give uniformly satisfactory service.

You should get your own Lallely-Light now—since every day's delay means an actual loss of money to you.

Ask yourself if there is any good reason for doing without Lallely Electric Light and Power this fall and winter.

Then come to see us, or send for us.

The
Long Journey

By WINIFRED L. JEWELL

Rodney Price was mad and ashamed both at the same time. People stared at him and he was humiliated from the fact that they stared also at the big policeman who had just led him from a drinking place and now kindly, though, reprovingly, took him to the corner with the words:

"Go home now, young man, and thank me for saving you your money and perhaps your sense. I fancy you don't know the reputation of the joint you went into."

Rodney Price did not reply. He traced in going into "the joint" a step down an incline whither he had been headed for some time past. He had gone into the place because he had not the moral strength to resist a panacea for a headache, a trembling frame and a general sense of collapse, due to over-indulgence the night previous.

The dutiful and friendly officer saw to it that the man he had rescued was not followed or headed off. He kept his eye on Price until he had turned a corner. Half a square further progressed, the latter stumbled where there was a loose sidewalk tile. He steadied himself and did not fall, although his head was dizzy and a subtle drowsiness was overcoming him. Contact with the obstruction had ripped off the heel of one shoe. Price picked it up and passed on his way seeking a shoe shop and at last came to a sign telling that repairing was done inside.

A woman, her back to him, was holding out two little shoes and explaining that she wanted them ready by noon, when she would call for them. As Price plunged heavily into a seat she addressed the cobbler.

"It's my little one's birthday, Mr. Akers," she said, "and I've promised to take her to a movie this afternoon."

"The cost will be nothing, mum," observed the gentle hearted cobbler. "I'll send them over before noon, and you can tell your little one that the mending was my present, and if I was a little better off I'd give her a brand new pair."

Rodney Price held his senses dizzying and muddled. Somehow, however, he roused up as a vague recognition of the soft low tone of the woman reached his hearing, but he could not trace out the suggestion. In a mandala way he gained the counter unsteadily.

"Just fix my heel, will you?" he spoke, and handed it and the shoe he had taken off to the cobbler. "And let me snooze for an hour, I'm terribly dozy. When you wake me up have the little girl's shoe fixed, too. I've got an idea. See?"

The old shoemaker did not "see" anything further than an inebriate talking incoherently. When the hour had gone by, however, he came from behind the counter, the mended shoe in his hand. He had some difficulty in arousing Price, who unknowingly was the victim of a drugged drink. The latter put on the shoe, produced a well-filled pocket book, selected a bank note and threw it on the counter.

"No change," he ordered. "Hello!" as his eyes fell upon the little mended shoes, and then his hand passed over his brow confusedly. "Oh, yes, I remember now, poor woman, the child's birthday. And you, good old soul, was to fix the shoes for nothing. A capital job, too, neatly patched and polished up nicely. Here," and he tendered a second bank note to the astonished cobbler. "And here," he added with a reckless laugh, "I'll do my share," and he stuffed a handful of bills in one of the tiny shoes. "Now then, you let me deliver them, won't you? Where does the little one live?"

"Second floor, No. 182, six doors west. There's a sign in front—'dressmaker'."

"All right. Poor little shoes. Poor little child. And me a regular goody two shoes, eh? Well somebody will be happy, and the bewildered shoemaker's visitor left the place unsteadily, the two little shoes in his hand.

His gait was unsteady, his sight blurred, for the drugged drink had not yet lost its effect. He located 182, however, and the sign "dressmaker" and the second floor. About to approach a door he slipped to the floor of the hallway instead, for a second time robbed of his senses by the drug.

"Oh, mamma!" exclaimed the little child, as she chanced to open the door, and, startled, noticed the prostrate man. "Here's someone sick, or asleep, and oh, my shoes! all fixed up beautifully, and oh, mamma! they are full of money!"

Lost in amazement the mother viewed the situation.

When Rodney Price aroused again he lay on a couch in a neat but poorly furnished room. He fancied he was dreaming as a familiar, long sought-for face seemed to flash across his vision. He reviewed the wife abandoned, two years of inebriety, a fortune won in a camp, a search for the loved, despised, a drunk, but now—

One word she said look she bestow—ure he had not—she held to—Price realized end of a

War's Effect On
U. S. Population

Experts Puzzled, But Believe Westward Shift Halted By Growth Of Industrial Centers

WASHINGTON, Sept. 17. (United Press.)—Striking changes in the growth and character of the population of the United States are expected to be shown by the 1920 census, preparations for which are under way. The shifting of population because of the war has upset the calculations of census experts, who since 1917 have considered it useless to attempt to estimate population of any other units than states. Before that, it was possible to predict with a fair degree of accuracy the number of persons in any given locality.

The "center of population," it is believed, has stopped its westward movement, which was continuous from 1790 to 1910, when it was located in Bloomington, Ind. This is because industrial cities in the central east, such as Cleveland and Detroit, have been growing at a greatly increased rate during recent years, as have manufacturing centers further east. Formerly the Rocky Mountain and Pacific Coast states increased in population with twice the rapidity of eastern and central states.

During this year, however, certain modifications of the unusual situation may be made. The opening of reclamation projects in the west, the resumption of immigration, and other causes, it is thought, will change the abnormal distribution. There will also be a tendency to return to normal now that the war is ended.

Pronounced changes are expected also in the "constitution of the population"—the ratio of males to females, the proportions of native and foreign stock, and the age distribution. When a city experiences a rapid growth due to industrial and commercial activity, the gain in population is largely made up of persons in the young and early middle ages. Among these persons there will be more men than women. For example, in Oklahoma City, where the population grew nearly 500 percent between 1900 and 1910, the ratio of males to females in the latter year was 126 to 100, and 62 percent of the population was between 15 and 45.

The coming census is also expected to show a continuation of the movement from the country to the city, which has been going on for many decades. A further decrease in the proportion of negro population is expected. In 1900 negroes numbered 11.6 percent and in 1900 10.7 percent. It is expected that the percentage of foreign-born will show a marked decline, due to the discontinuation of immigration. In recent years the native-born population did not increase as rapidly as the foreign-born. Fewer persons will be found, it is predicted, who are unable to speak English. In 1910 this number was 22.8 percent of the population.

The law requires the Census Bureau to make an actual count every 10 years, and an estimate for cities and states every year by arithmetical progression. Since 1917, however, the bureau has not estimated cities. A calculation of state population was made recently, however. Here it is:

Gay Calico Frocks for Outings

We have some faithful friends among cotton fabrics that often lapse into more or less complete oblivion. When they are about forgotten they emerge at the call of some great and enterprising customer. Having dropped out of general favor they become unusual and exclusive and thereby much to be desired by the smart set, and then we are refreshed by such examples of wholesome charm and simplicity as that which appears in the calico frock pictured. It could not be much simpler than it is. It is artfully unpretentious, just the thing for the artless millionnaire who intends to get back to nature and chase a few country butterflies by way of a change.

This particular calico frock is red and white, like a stick of peppermint candy. In fact they have much the same flavor. The plain, straight skirt, you will notice, does not aspire to a very wide hem such as is allowed in organdies and lavens, but it is shirred in several rows at the waistline into the narrow belt. All the sewing on this frock is carefully done. The old-fashioned pockets are outlined with a very narrow fancy braid of white cotton and have the simplest of very narrow black ribbon set on them—a little crease for being so pretty and quaint. The waist, as simple and plain as the skirt, is finished at the "V"-shaped neck with a wide plain collar of white net set off with a bow of black ribbon and a white lawn chemise fills it in daintily. Altogether this is a dress that is worth the while of an artist in clothes, and it is very pretty. Perhaps the same design is responsible for the brown and white small-checkedingham, made up with the introduction of white lawn in accessories, with a hat to match, that outshines its more expensive rivals on the street. These familiar materials and unpretentious dresses have their own charm and are in a class by themselves.

BUSINESS MEN AND BANKERS OF WORLD MEET NEXT WEEK

NEW YORK, Sept. 27.—Results of great importance bearing on foreign trade and reconstruction are expected from the gathering of leading business men and bankers of the United States, and representatives of Great Britain, France, Italy and Belgium, at the international trade conference to be held at Atlantic City next week. Underlying the conference is the purpose to obtain universal action now, to set in motion the wheels of commerce and industry, to the end that trade processes may be restored throughout the world.

The Chamber of Commerce of the United States laid the foundation for the conference by inviting the allied countries to send their best men here to meet American business men and to help construct a program for the future, so that trade will flow without interruption.

Following the conference, the plan is for the foreign delegations to tour the principal cities east of the Mississippi, which will afford further opportunity for acquaintance and discussion between United States business men and those of other countries.

Each of the allied countries has sent a delegation of five members, together with numerous assistants. Among the foreign delegates are cabinet officers and others noted for their ability and experience in handling trade problems.

The British delegation is headed by Sir Arthur Shirley Benn, a member of parliament and a prominent captain of industry in England. Other members of the delegation are Marshall Stevens, M. P., one of the founders of the Manchester Ship Canal and an authority on transportation; J. G. Jenkins, former Premier of Australia; John King, chairman of the National Light Castings Association, of Glasgow, and A. Barton Kent, of London.

The honorary president of the French delegation, which includes officials and business men who can speak with authority for the most important divisions of French industry, is M. Clementel, Minister of Commerce, and his adjutant, M. Tirman, Councillor of State, who represented France at the San Francisco exposition some years ago. Other members of the French delegation are M. Schneider, head of the famous gun works at Le Creusot; M. De Neuville, one of the leading bankers of Paris; M. Prevot, president of the Union of Wholesale Food Syndicates, and M. Mazot, general secretary of the French High Commission.

No less distinguished is the personnel of the delegation which Italy has sent to represent her in the deliberations of the international conference. The Italian delegation is headed by Senator Marconi, the famous inventor of the wireless. Associated with him are Silvio Crespi, food controller in Italy during the war; Pio Peroni, a prominent shipbuilder and ironmaster; Salvatore Tagliavia, mayor of the city of Palermo; G. Quartieri, a celebrated manufacturer of chemicals, and Marco Cassini, who is president of the Associated Italian Chambers of Commerce.

The Belgian representatives in the conference will be: Aloys van de Vyvere, former Minister of Finance of Belgium; M. Janssens, director of the National Bank of Belgium; Canon Lagrand, president of the Chamber of Commerce of Mons; M. de Groote, president of the Chamber of Commerce of Antwerp, and M. Van Denen, a representative of Louvain University.

RALLY DAY AT TRINITY METHODIST SUNDAY SCHOOL

Sunday will be a day of special interest in Trinity Methodist church. Rally Day in the Sunday school at 9:30 a. m. promises to bring together the largest attendance of the year. Twenty young people will present a pageant entitled "Youth and the New Day." Mr. Lawrence will lead the singing. Twenty-five boys and girls will march from the primary to the main school, present a brief program under the direction of Mrs. Don Gintory and each scholar will receive a Bible in recognition of the advancement to the junior department.

At the morning preaching hour, an opportunity will be given for the baptism of children. The Junior League meets at 2:30 p. m. The Epworth League 6:30 p. m. and the evening preaching hour is 7:30 o'clock. Visitors and strangers are cordially invited to enjoy the hours of worship with us.

The palace of Versailles, the scene of the signing of the world peace treaty, is probably the most costly palace ever built. In order to keep the outlay a secret, Louis XVI destroyed all the documents relating to the building.

BARTERING PLACES

Back in the centuries the shops or stores you know started in something on the order of public bartering places.

What has taken their place is the modern store, where you can buy what you like just when you want it. You don't have to buy a year's supply all at once as of old. The storekeeper keeps it for you, and you buy only what you need as you need it.

The merchants and the manufacturer and advertiser have brought this useful state of affairs about for your convenience. You don't even have to go to see everything and every shop to make your choice nowadays.

The advertisers relieve you of this trouble, by bring their goods to you in the advertisements. Before the days of the development of advertising, you would have had to visit a dozen or a score of places weigh and choose, and then not be sure you had made the best selection. Advertising has made it possible to know just what will interest you.

Just think what this means: You order now without worry or trouble because advertising tells you all about the things you want to buy before you buy them.

Read the advertisements and think about them with this in mind. They are there to serve you.

MOSTLY SWEATERS

If you've but one sweater
You'd really much better
Go get yourself three or four more
For here on the Coast
It's the obvious boast
Each damsel owns fully a score.

BY MARGARET RHODE
(Written for The United Press)

ANYWHERE IN SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA, Sept. 20.—The native costume of the Southern California female aborigine consists mostly of a sweater—one for each day in the week. The more detail of a sport skirt or a pair of riding breeches to accompany it make up the appropriate and attractive ensemble. The favored and omnipresent attire is varied only by the substitution of a necker for a sweater for one or two of the days out of the weekly seven.

Back east we think we know a thing or two about sweaters, but the California sweater is to the Eastern garment what a riot of California roses is to the floral offerings of our bland New England coast.

Variety is the spice of sweaters and all the changes that colored yarns and knitting needles can spell, to say nothing of the crochet hook, have been brought into play to deck the native daughter.

Save for a few filet crochet sweaters of silk, the Golden Girls haven't become enmeshed so completely in these delightful sweaters as their Eastern cousins. Their penchant seems to be for a knitted slip-on wool sweater whose elbow sleeves finish in a full frill of the knitted wool and which ends its knit and part career in a full ripply peplum around the hips. These are usually of two colors—the peplum, sleeve ruffles and a border around the V shaped neck being in contrasting hue from the body of the sweater.

Aside from these fussy little slip-ons, the more conventional sweater coat of heavy knitted silk is the best dress-up sweater. A stunning one of navy blue silk with a collar and fold continued all the way down both sides of the front of fluffy white angora is being worn by the striking wife of author Peter B. Kyne, the famous California test the right of a woman to practice dentistry in the Province of Quebec.

navy stockings and a broad brimmed sailor hat of navy blue velvet with an entire under-brim of long-haired white beaver exactly matching up the navy-trimmed blue sweater.

When it comes to the slip-on model, they are even more fascinating than the sweaters. The most delicate are of cotton Japanese crepe, applied in a single rose of contrasting crepe on the left breast, blanket stitched in silk or wool. All edges of the smocks are also outlined with the same stuff.

A lovely lavender smock sports a pink rose with green stem and leaves, while a royal purple shows a rose of vivid flame and a buttercup yellow is blanket stitched in black with a rose of two-shaded purple.

Just why those sleeveless, slip-on garments are dubbed smocks is an enigma, for navy a smock show they. They resemble more a jumper bottom, with their blanket stitch bordered belts. Even the loose three quarter regulation artistic cut smocks, long sleeved and evolved of voile or thinner cotton crepe are smockless as to stitching, but they are fascinatingly stitched in wool and appliqued in lovely garlands of differently tinted, cut out crepe flowers—morning glories, roses or even first fruits like apples or the festive cherry and the purple grape.

But bands stitched and appliqued to match up these smocks are made of floppy sunhats of coarse bright straw and complete a set that few can resist. Certainly when East is West East must be smocked and sweaters to repletion or be a dowdy dame indeed. For to be out of a sweater out in California is to be out of style and out of luck, as well as out of the picture.

Miss Rose Hobert, a graduate of the dental school of Laval university has instituted court proceedings to test the right of a woman to practice dentistry in the Province of Quebec.

CHAMPIONSHIP CHECKER GAMES AT Y. M. C. A.

The championship player of Clearfield, N. F. Hoffman, met his match last night when "Jimmy" Donaldson, a soldier from DuBois, journeyed over the mountains to play for the championship of the county. A fair sized crowd saw the games. The first two games were draws, then Mr. Donaldson won a game, then two more draws then the local player won one and after this there were three more draws and the match ended in a tie for honors.

Any person wishing to join a checker tournament will please hand in their name at the office.

DRESS OF NAVY GEORGETTE

ROMPERS FOR THE KIDDIES

Suggestions of Suitable Materials and Decorations for Playtime and Dress Occasions.

The baby who is brought up without an intimate acquaintance with rompers is to be sympathized with. Never was there so comfortable a style, and now that decorative handwork has taken these wee garments under its wing, never has there been a more attractive style for the playtime of the littlest member of the family.

Materials for the rompers vary from flimsy to wash silk and include seersucker, chambray, cotton crepe, linen and unbleached muslin. All admit the decorative touch. It may be smocking, which in the case of soft materials, is always lovely. The smocking can be used to excellent advantage on the wash silks built on the regulation romper pattern. It gathers in the fullness at the front of the neck and at the bottom of the sleeves and is done, of course, in a contrasting color. Fleshy color smocking in light blue is a fetching color scheme.

One model that is differently attractive has a kimono sleeve instead of the set-in variety. Another has bloomer legs instead of the opening right across the bottom, which, by the way, is better for very young children. The former kimono top uses, besides the blue daisies and outlined bluebird in the front, rows of feathers stitching to hold the fullness in the proper place and thus give the kimono cut a semblance of shape.

A contrasting belt of white with bunny and outlining in yellow gives the appearance of separate trousers to a bloomer model in tan chambray. Just contrasting frills of white and pearl buttons make another chambray model as dainty a little garment as one could wish. But the prize really must go to a little dainty affair in white silk with real Irish lace plait edging around the collar and sleeve, then blue French knots to match the blue cross-stitched geese on its belt.

KEYNOTE OF DRESS

Some of the new mushroom hats have bandeaux inside.

Little belts of bright-colored ribbon are popular for the white costume.

Black satin ribbon is arranged in spiral fashion on a black satin gown.

Individuality is unquestionably the keynote of present season dressing.

Hatpins with flower heads of brilliantly varnished kid are a Paris novelty.

Few of them are now permitting themselves to be bound by ironical style rulings, either as to color or fabric, skirt length or width.

Crope de chine has had so many songs sung in its favor that little needs to be said. It is the fabric that for centuries has been found by the Chinese to serve mankind well.

New silhouettes come and go, but a careful study of the sartorial scenery in any fashionable gathering place will convince the observer that the best dressed women are wearing what is becoming.

Pongee Popularity.

As sure as the coming of summer, pongee in some form appears. This year there are lovely pongee parasols. Some are mounted on brown frames and sticks, with no other trimming than brown cords on the handles and brown tassels on the ends. Another shows lovely blue butterflies embroidered all over the inside of the parasol, with blue cord and blue ends to the sticks.

One thousand six hundred wagon loads of dirt are removed daily from the streets of London.

EMMA GOLDMAN TO BE DEPORTED WHEN RELEASED

JEFFERSON CITY, MO., Sept. 26.—When Emma Goldman is released from the penitentiary here tomorrow, upon the completion of her two-year sentence for conspiring to prevent the operation of the Selective Service Act, it is likely that she will be given an early opportunity to fulfill the desire expressed at the time of her conviction that she might be permitted to return to Russia to fight for the dear Bolsheviks.

The department of justice has served notice on counsel for Miss Goldman that she will be arrested immediately upon her release and held for deportation hearing. Under a recent Federal law aliens who have been twice convicted of a crime may be deported to the country from whence they came. Previous to her arrest and conviction in the draft conspiracy case Miss Goldman served a year in New York on a charge of inciting others to riot. Under the law she thus becomes liable to deportation and it is probable she will be returned to Russia, in which country she was born.

For many years Emma Goldman has been the most conspicuous woman anarchist and foe of the established order resident in the United States, and her affiliations with the cult of lawlessness in Europe have been close. She was born in Russia in 1870 of Jewish parents. At the age of sixteen she came to America and took up her residence in Rochester, N. Y. Early in life she developed nihilist tendencies of an aggressive nature, and before she was twenty she became associated with the worst anarchists in America. In 1897 she was arrested while addressing a Russian air meeting in Union Square, New York, and convicted of "inciting to riot." For this offense she spent ten months in Blackwell's Island Prison.

After the assassination of President McKinley in 1901 she again became an object of police surveillance. She was arrested on various charges and spent many days in jail.

QUICK AND ECONOMICAL TRANSPORTATION

THE automatic locking differential, a feature of the Nash Quad as well as all Nash trucks, practically prevents loss of traction by spinning of the driving wheels. This makes it especially suited to the work of Lumber and Timber concerns.

The fact that the Quad drives and brakes on all four wheels, giving it practically double the traction efficiency of ordinary trucks, makes it still more attractive to industries whose hauling difficulties are extraordinarily hard.
